Forecast for Saturday 27 Aug 2022

Weather: Increasingly long clear spells overnight leading to a dry and sunny morning. It continues dry through the afternoon although the sunshine is expected to turn increasingly hazy from the southwest through the afternoon. Cloud continues to increase through the evening with outbreaks of mainly light rain reaching the Cuillin Ridge, Knoydart and Torridon towards midnight.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 800m: Close to 100%, chances fall in the far southwest during the late evening.

Low cloud and visibility: Little or no cloud expected below the summits, cloud in far southwest lowers onto summits during the late evening. Otherwise visibility generally very good or excellent.
